

Demetrius Myatt Bio

Demetrius Myatt has four years of experience in planning, developing and evaluating community programs. He has worked in a variety of capacities across corporate, political and civic sectors where he has been charged with interacting with community representatives and organizations to meet the needs of communities. Trained and competent in the areas of diversity, equity, and inclusion, Myatt understands the importance of leveraging diversity as a tool to enhance and improve communities.

A master of public service, volunteerism, and civic engagement, Myatt currently uses his skills as a Data Analytics Administrator at Operation HOPE, where he collects and analyzes data that can be used to change the trajectory of underserved communities.

As a seasoned political analyst, Myatt has worked in a variety of capacities for elected officials, including the City of Atlanta Office of former Councilman Ivory Young (deceased) as a Project and Community Engagement Coordinator. In this capacity, Myatt prepared annual reports that communicated the work and progress of the district; coordinated public appearances and public relations with Communications Department; assisted in the management of the district budget, including funding to support community-based projects; and developed and implemented community-based partnerships.
